therefore, the sleep disorders that frequently occur in fms patients are treated first because they may be a strong contributing factor to the symptoms of this condition.