the sutures used to close the deeper layers of tissue are made of a material that the body eventually absorbs, while the uppermost layer of skin is closed with metal surgical staples.

each party shall ensure that its competent authorities inform the applicant within a reasonable period whether they have accepted the application.