If a person has exercised too much or suffers from arthritis or rheumatism, ginger has been known to ease inflammation of the joints and muscle tissue.

The attempt caused widespread outrage among health practitioners and suppliers from India because the herb has been used in Ayurvedic medicine for thousands of years to heal and treat major diseases.